THEME

During the past year, the Seniors studied and enjoyed poetry. They were enriched by this experience. They have, therefore, chosen the marvelous expression of poetry as the theme of PATHWAYS.

4 - WORDSWORTH

OH, POET!

4 - WHITTIER

5 - BYRON

Your hands are like pearls, Bringing forth beauty that is truly magic.
You can describe so thoroughly
The ways of a little girl;
The ways of all things both mild and tragic.

5 - LINDSAY

Your eyes are like the sun,
Bestowing life to that which lives
And that which will never live.
You can look at a rose
And your description can be surpassed by none.
With the heart you see and give.

6 - SHELLEY

Your ears are like sensitive instruments
Receiving sounds from steadfast stars,
Making them beat in our hearts.
You find light in darkness;
In silence you find sound and contentment.
Be there whisper, you will find it
Though it be near or far in every part.

DEDICATION

We dedicate this book to the memory of John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

IN MEMORIAM

To see a man so kind, so good diminished in your neighborhood, someone the world has loved and cheered,
an image of a man not feared.

A mass of flesh which bore Our Lord within his breast, Christ was adored.
He did so much for everyone and Russia's heart he also won.

Where e'er he traveled, near and far,
he was guided by God's brightest star;
hands were shook, smiles were cast,
A memory now; this man has passed.

For Adam, God created Eve,
But our President was made to leave his wife, John Jr., and Caroline, to carry on his works, in time.

Once there was a cheerful nation rich with goodness in God's creation gaily riding in a motorcade unknowing, for him, a bullet was made.

People, who cheered, now have cried their tears, from the world, they couldn't hide.

"To serve your country," he hath said;
this he did, and now, he's dead.

A form of truth and bravery like Lincoln, banished slavery in different manner; this we know, forcing discrimination to go.

His eyes now shut; his lips so still,
this innocent form brings a silent chill while now his lifeless body lies amongst the heroes in our tear-filled eyes.

Joan Petock

"For it is a pleasure, too, to remember."

Ovid

To the Graduates:

Although I am no longer at Yorkville, I still feel that your graduating class is MY class. I did spend two and a half years with you and had the pleasure of watching your progress from your sophomore to senior year. I am proud to be able to say that I was your principal during that time. You are a group of fine young ladies who would be a credit to any school or any principal.

We have a great deal in common. My years at Yorkville, like yours, were successful and happy ones, and neither you nor I will ever forget them. May you continue to prosper and may you always have good fortune!

*Sincerely yours,
Simpson Sasserath*

"Reason and calm judgment, the qualities specially belonging to a leader."

Tacitus

To the Graduates:

I should like to take this opportunity to greet you and, at the same time, to wish you well in whatever you do after you leave Yorkville Vocational High School.

For many of you, this will be the end of your formal schooling. May I urge you, however, to keep three major goals in mind. First, try by force of personality and behavior to serve as a good citizen of your city, your state, and your country. Second, continue to develop your mental abilities by reading good books, by listening to good music, by expanding your intellectual horizons. Third, make use of the training which has been given to you to become successful in your chosen career or profession.

You will find that your service as an intelligent, well-employed citizen will give you the satisfaction and happiness that lead to a good life.

Sincerely,

Sherwood Friedman

"Good counsellors lack no clients."

Shakespeare

A Message to the Seniors

Your years at Yorkville have, indeed, been historic ones! During the three years you have spent here, the emergence of many new nations and power struggles in some of the older nations have taken place. In our own country, we witnessed the election of the nation's youngest President. And you and I were also unfortunate to see the assassination of that same man in whom the voters of the country had placed such confidence.

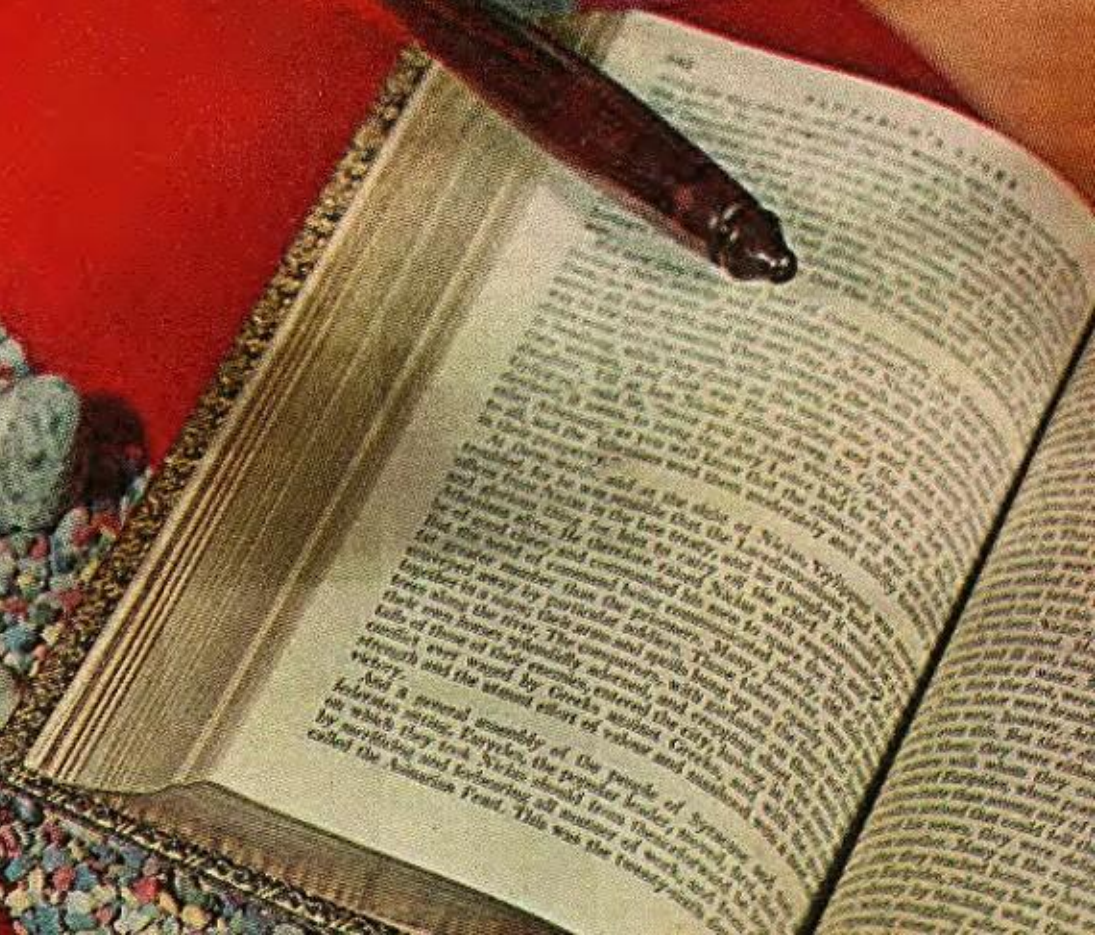

"Let the world go forth," he said in his Inaugural Address, "to friend and foe alike that the torch is passed to a new generation." You are a part of that new generation who, having received the torch, must guard it lest its flame go out. The greatest tribute that can be paid to the memory of John Fitzgerald Kennedy is our dedication to make this country and the world a place in which all mankind may live together in harmony. May God give you the love, the determination and the strength to complete the task to which he was committed, and for which he died.

Sincerely yours,

Clementine Holmes

A POEM

This is what a poem can do:
Take you where the skies are blue;
Take you where the laughter's ringing
And the eyes with love aglow;
Take you out of care and trouble
And the grief which seems to double;
Take you far from winter weather
And the fields of drifted snow;
This is what a poem can do.

This is what a poem can do:
Build and strengthen you anew;
Give you fortitude and courage
When alone a storm appears;
It can fashion and remake you
So that fate can never break you;
It can comfort and console you
When your eyes are wet with tears;
This is what a poem can do.

Lorraine Middleton

THIS DAY OF MOURNING

This day of mourning to my Commander-in-Chief,
Like a soldier of fortune, he had but one wreath,
And that from a country he loved well.
He was a symbol to us, like the Liberty Bell.
The torch before his grave stands
For freedom and for a brave, brave man.
Like the torch, he was a light for every land.
The flag, like his spirit, will live on and on.
Like a fine painting or a precious stone.
This to you, Commander-in-Chief:
We, the people, mourn for you.
We walk behind you.

Earleen Davis

A FRIEND

God is my friend;
He's your friend too.
He'll help us till the end
If we promise to be true.
Whenever you're in despair
And in need of reconciliation,
Just go to Him in prayer;
He'll give the best consultation.
Whenever you need a friend,
Remember what I say,
He is with us till the end,
He's near this very day.

A FLAG

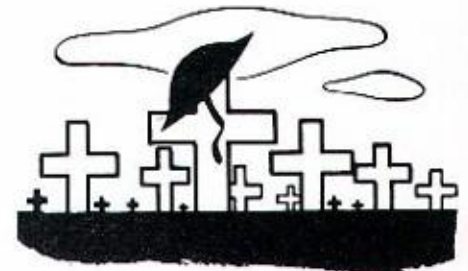

A flag flies high o'er America;
it stands for freedom and for peace.
'twas carried thru the wars so cold
our honor for it shall never cease.

The wind blows free throughout her veins and holds a dream for all the world;
she's hoisted high, and stands erect with arms out-stretched being tossed and curled.

She embraces us with love and life and guides our land throughout the night, and wakes us with the morning's call,
filling us with truth and light.

She carries memories of those men who never lived to tell the story of how they fought to save her name and helped to win her fame and glory.

In her breast, they still march on so brave, and with fraternity, bleeding, dying, 'till they fall;
they'll live in her for eternity.

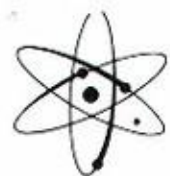

WHERE DO WE STAND?

There's brutality and cruelty which all of us must face.
There's loyalty and happiness which all of us should give.

Although we know what life can bring,
we must be prepared to face the facts, and try to live the best we can with the little things we may possess.

So, when we're down on all our luck,
and nothing seems to change our needs;
Look around! See what we have,
and ask ourselves, "Where do we stand?"

Poems written by Joan Petock

AWAKENING

The country has awakened
To a bright and early morning.
As the sun moves higher in the sky,
People begin to scurry to work,
To buy and sell whatever's in sight.
As the day draws to a close,
The people once again scurry home
And soon the country's fast asleep.

A WISH

I'd like to be so happy
That my heart would sing for joy;
I'd spread this cheer around the world
To every girl and boy.
I'd give strength to those in hunger,
Faith to those in pain;
I'd be an everlasting light
For hope and peace again.

INSIDE LOOKING OUT

When I look out the window,
I see shining drops of water
Falling from a charcoal sky
And bouncing off a block street;
The rain in dance.
The windows of the buildings across the way Shine from the light that comes through them.
And when I think of the cold damp bricks
Of that building and mine,
I think to myself,
How lucky to be inside
On a night like this.

Poems written by Zeraida Rosa.

BOYS

I think that I shall never see
A boy who is not a mystery.
A boy who falls for every skirt;
Then gets angry when you flirt.
A boy who makes an early date;
Then comes by an hour late.
A boy who thinks it's cute to wear
A flat-top instead of hair.
A boy who either drives too fast
Or "accidentally" runs out of gas.
But, I guess, they'll have to do
'Cause I can't love a tree,
Can you?

Paulette Nelmida

SO MUCH TO ME

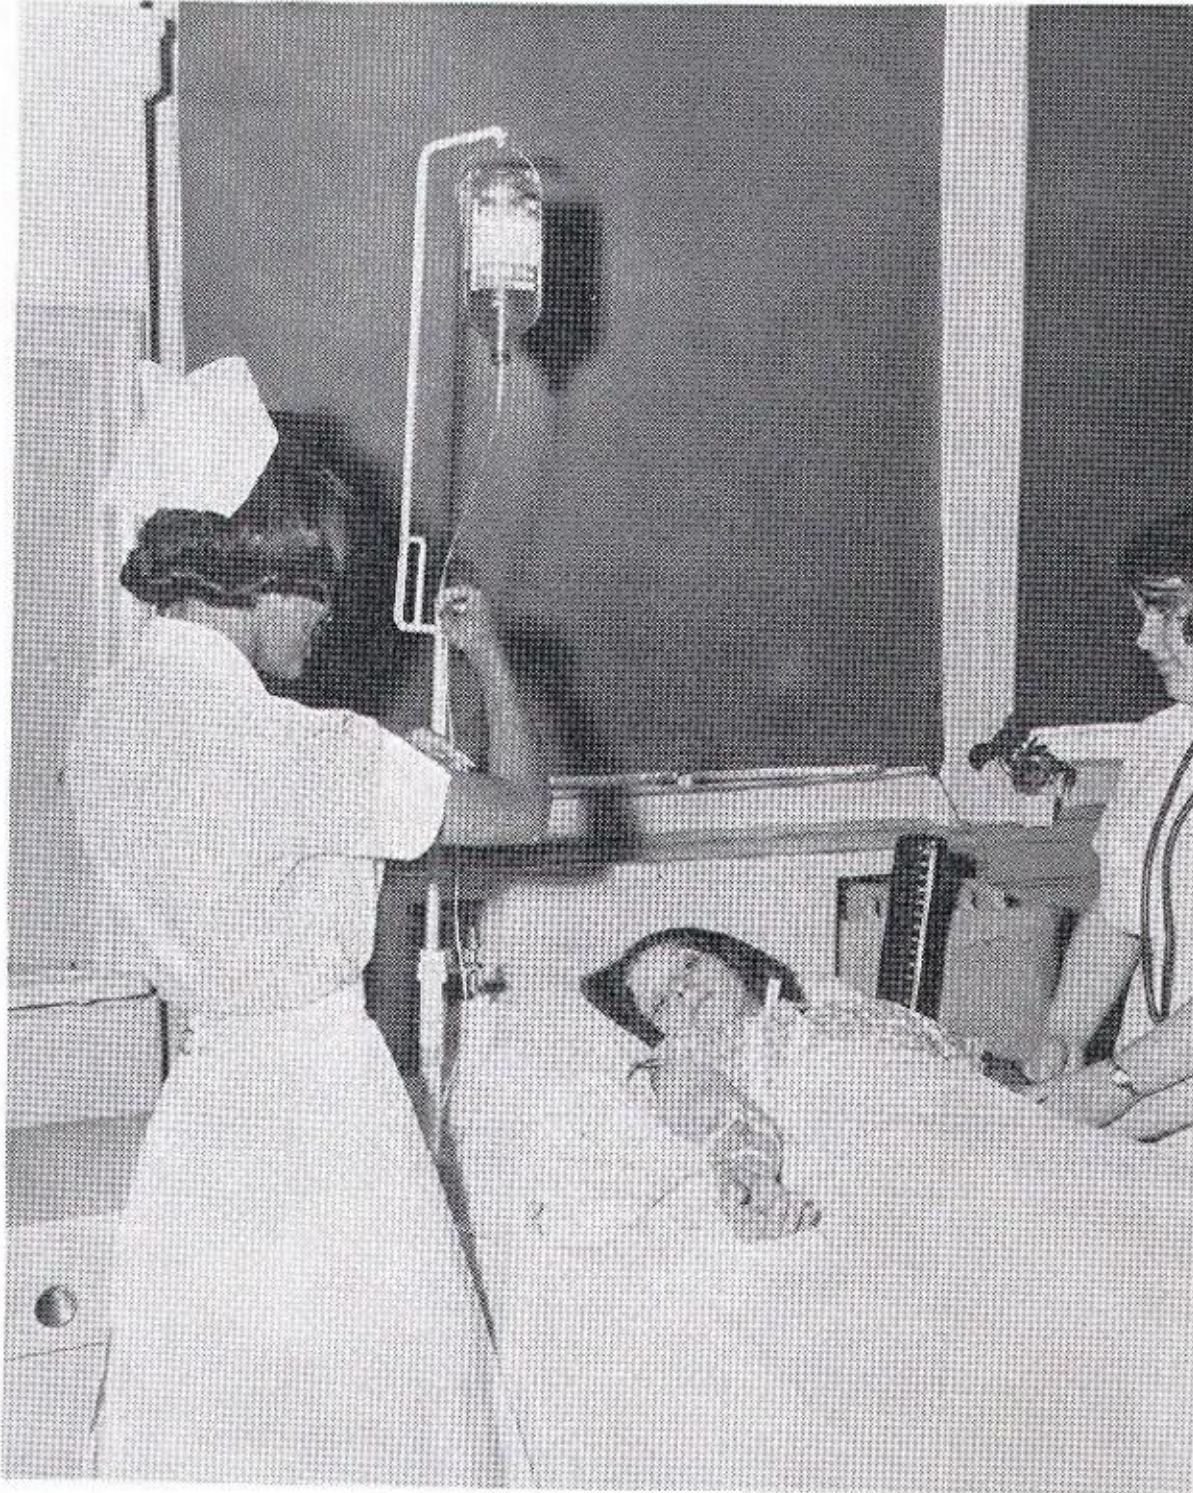

You mean everything to me in so many ways, ways in which I can't even stop to think of.
You're like a lily after a shower that opens its arms to caress me;
you're like the sunshine of the early morn that guides me on my endless way;
you're like the gentle mist of morning dew that softly kisses my eager lips;
you're like the brightest moon at night that waits for me to wander through the day and never gives me a chance to have an idle mind
'cause I'm so wrapped up in my love for you and always thinking of—your tender smile, your friendly touch, and your challenging heart.

FAREWELL

It's hard to be us standing here
And on our lips, "Goodbye."
To realize that we must leave you,
Yorkville Vocational High!

But as we close these well-loved doors
And strive to attain our goals,
We will not forget you, Yorkville High;
You've enriched our minds and souls.

CHILDREN

"Congratulations, daughter dear,
you'll graduate in June, this year!
Leave us, then, for your own fad;
but, Joan, remember — Mom and Dad."
